

LARGEST IN THE CITY.

Purely Business!

The columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No publisher can afford to give advertising "notices" free any more than a merchant can give his customer free gifts of dry goods or shoes. A newspaper is a legitimate business concern. Its columns are its stock in trade, and advertisements should be paid for, no matter in what part of the paper they appear.

The Continued Calls

Upon THE LEDGER for free notices have become so burdensome that we are forced to publish the following terms:

For Notices of Suppliers, recipients, rates, or other public information where a fee is charged, and for ordinary notices, reductions of rates, etc. The LEDGER will charge five cents a line, and hereafter this will be the favorable rule. This, however.

Does Not Include

notices of Lodge meetings or Church services, which must not exceed ten lines.

Avoidance of Disputes.

Misunderstandings are unpleasant. The rate for Business Local in THE LEDGER is to count a line for the first insertion and 5 cents a line for subsequent insertions. A customer orders a five-line local insertion in the paper. "I'll tell you when to take it out," he says to the manager. But he forgets all about it. The notice runs for two months—20 times. The bill is $10. When he finds it out there is a "check" and a controversy. It had probably by an act of forgetting. Now to obviate this trouble, to "old order" notices will be accepted hereafter. Let's have a definite agreement at the outset and the termination will be pleasant all around.

For all matter for publication must be handed in before 9 o'clock in the morning of each day.

The iron viaduct across Limestone bottom, to replace the present wooden trestle, will be put in this fall.

The Republican majority in the Third Railroad Commission District is large enough. It is a trifle of 10,113.

It may be said with certainty that the C. and O. will be a double track road its entire length within the next five years.

As if the river wasn't low enough already, Superintendent Schaeffer was pumping water out of it all day yesterday.

The marriage of Miss Nora Manker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Manker, formerly of this city but now of Peoria, Ill., to Mr. Robert Miller Town of Leitchfield, Ill., is announced to occur Wednesday morning, November 30th, at 10 o'clock, at the home of the bride.

The abutments of the C. and O. crossing at Bridge street are being extended so as to accommodate a double track, but the abutments of the bridge over Limestone will not be widened until next season. Until the latter is done there cannot be a double track all the way between Brookmans and the Fairgrounds.

ON THE RUN.

I see her turn the corner;
I hear her manish tread;
I feel an awful presence,
That fills my soul with dread.
Great Scott! She's drawing nearer;
I'll vanish while I can.
It's she the coming woman,
Then I'm the going man.

OUR COAST.

Its Defenseless Condition Causes Much Comment.

Adm. Walker Thinks a War With Great Britain Would Show

How Big This Country is Prepared for Such an Encounter as the Navy is Now

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The defenseless condition of the American coast, which the general of the army has recently elaborated with such precision of detail, is for the moment the principal subject of conversation among army and navy officers. Gen. Miles declared that England, notwithstanding her great navy, would be practically helpless against a powerful adversary, but for her system of coast defense, is fully equipped, and that both branches of the service. Adm. John O. Walker, who represents the progressive element of the new navy, regards coast defense as the complement of each other. That is to say no great country can protect itself without both systems of defense.

What Adm. Walker says in this connection is significant not only because of his knowledge of military matters, but for the further reason that he believes a war between the United States and a strong foreign power would demonstrate how big this country is prepared for such an encounter.

I am a good defender," said Adm. Walker Thursday morning. "But I can not shut my eyes to cold facts. We are not prepared today to engage in war with any first-class power. We are in the position that China occupied in her recent struggle with Japan. We have a vast population, great wealth, boundless resources and intense patriotism. But we can not maintain an offensive or defensive attitude against any one of the great powers in foreign countries. What Gen. Miles says about the defenseless condition of our coast cities is entirely correct."

"It is true that New York and San Francisco are better protected than our other commercial cities, but even there would be a danger of the results of a dozen powerful ironclads. So far as the remaining cities are concerned they have no protection whatever."

"What do you think the government ought to do?"

Congress should make liberal appropriations for coast defenses and for additional ships of war. More than anything else we need a strong navy. We had a dozen battleships in the Indiana class on the Atlantic coast we could defy as powerful a marauding force as Great Britain. We have now only two battleships left, and the others have been appropriated for. We need at least seven more. If congress would appropriate the money two of these battleships might be given to the Crampa, two to the Huntington yard at Newport News, one to the Union iron works at San Francisco and the other to the navy yards at Brooklyn and Norfolk. With anything like a fair system of coast defense we would be beyond the probability of attack. There would be no more Corinto incidents, or talk of foreign aggressions on American soil. The United States would be pre-eminent on the American continent. The greatest preparation against war is to be fully prepared for it."

"What about the Pacific coast?"

"Three battleships would be sufficient for those waters, as the only probability of trouble there is with the countries to the south of us, and three such vessels would amply protect us from their assaults."

"Then you don't think we are prepared for war at present?"

"We are very far from it. Our ships are the best of their class in the world, but we have not enough of them. We need more fighting ships—battleships. The battleship is to the navy what the fighting ship is to the army. It is the fighting part of the navy, and it should be supplemented by torpedo boats, coast defense vessels and swift cruisers, as the infantry is supplemented by the employment of cavalry and artillery. The battle ship is not needed in times of peace, but it is indispensable in war. It is the only vessel engaged in it can be laid up as the police work of the ocean can be performed by small gunboats which would be effective in battle, but which are useful to carry the flag. This is the policy of Great Britain, who sends her gunboats abroad while her powerful ironclads, which are expensive to keep in commission, remain on the home stations."

"Could Great Britain, for example, send all of her ships to the United States in the event of war between the two countries?"

"No, I doubt if she could send half of her vessels, for she can not leave her interests in other parts of the world unprotected. But even a part of her great navy would be a serious start to us. On the other hand if we met her with a dozen powerful battleships, with each other resources as we possess, we could doubt the struggle. Meanwhile we could show her a serious war into Canada within a few weeks, so that the fight would not be so one-sided as it might at first glance appear."

"But you think at the present time England or any of the continental powers would have us at a disadvantage?"

"Undoubtedly. It is useless to talk about war with any strong European country in our present condition."

The Armenians set fire to the mosque, the school and the bazaar, using for the purpose bombs containing inflammable material to make their work more certain. The insurgents also attacked the Mussulman quarter at Galoupark and killed many of the residents. The Armenian population of Arabkir have telegraphed to the Porte imploring protection. The authorities there succeeded, however, in restoring order. Forty bodies were discovered with which the Armenians designed to destroy the barracks and government offices. Five thousand Armenians have assembled at Tchoukmerzen, Adana, and report prepared for aggressive action.

The official dispatches charge the Armenians with various acts of murder and pillage at Erzinghan, Sivas and Mandlikli.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—A man, supposed to be Clarence White, one of a gang of pure criminals who last spring robbed the residence of Norman H. C. C. McDonald, superintendent of the ferry detective agency, who was among the men at the line of the shooting, has surrendered one of his men, who is believed to be the man who did the shooting. The police believe that all of the men shot, and that Dick has been selected to kill the man who shot the police. They consider that the ferry men have simply made a great mistake.

ONE FAMILY PROVIDED FOR.

It Includes the Monarch of Every European Country.

Intimately as the ruling families of Europe were allied by blood and marriage in the middle of the sixteenth century, when Mary I. was queen of England, the present day displays still more intimate and widespread connections between them.

Take the English royal family as the starting point. It is connected, first, with Germany by Louise, Frederick, the present emperor is Queen Victoria's grandson. The duke of Edinburgh, married into the Russian family. The prince of Wales, married a princess of Denmark, which house is also connected with Russia.

Denmark produced the present king of Greece.

The representatives of the Wettin family have been, during the present reign, the prince of Prussia, Ernest II., duke of Saxe-Coburg, Leopold II., king of Belgium; Ferdinand, prince of Bulgaria; Albert, king of Saxony; the king of Portugal, grand duke of Saxe-Coburg, who, by marrying the queen of Portugal, became king of that country.

The English family again is connected with the Oldenburgs, thus bringing in the Scandinavian family. The king of Denmark's daughter is the princess of Wales.

There are also George I., king of Greece; Ernest, duke of Schleswig-Holstein, the grand duke of Oldenburg; and Alexander III., emperor of Russia. Alexander III. again is a Romanoff.

In other directions, again, the emperor of Austria enters into his royal family, and on his side also the grand duke of Baden, the queen regent of Spain and her little boy king.

In fact, there is not a royal family in Europe at the present day which is not more or less intimately connected with the rest by kindred or by marriage.

MICROBES CARRIED BY BULLETS

Taken from infected flannel through which the Projectile Hit.

Some interesting experiments were lately made by Dr. Mesner, says the London News, by way of solving the question whether or not rifle bullets are liable to carry infection with them in their course of entry into the body. He made his trial with bullets which had been infected with germs of a particular kind, and the infected bullet was shot into his back from a distance varying from two to three feet, and he died within twenty minutes.

It is not known who fired the first shot. After exchanging about twenty-five shots the men in the buggy drove away.
